

Tsinghua University Emerging Policymakers Program
Sustainable Development within Planetary Constraints

Tsinghua University, in collaboration with the London School of Economics (LSE), the Leadership Academy for Development (LAD) of Stanford University, and the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), is launching the Emerging Policymakers Program. This is a fully-funded, 3-month executive training course aimed at early-career rising star government officials from emerging and developing economies, particularly those involved with infrastructure and climate policy.

The program, which is designed to equip participants with the latest academic and practical knowledge on the global fight against climate change, offers a unique blend of in-person discussions, case studies, seminars, and field visits, as well as virtual modules. Upon completion, participants will also have the opportunity to apply for secondment opportunities at AIIB.

We sincerely welcome your recommendations of the promising candidates who would benefit from this program and contribute significantly to its objectives. We are looking for leaders in government or public service from developing countries who are driven and ambitious to contribute to a sustainable world.

Here are the key criteria for candidates:

- Belong to a low or middle-income country
- Have 5-7 years of work experience
- Hold at least an undergraduate degree
- Be proficient in English
- Work on climate-related issues in government ministries involved with infrastructure and climate policy, notably the Ministry of Finance

The application period is open from 15th January to 15th March, 2025.

If you have any individuals in mind who might be a good fit, we would greatly appreciate it if you could pass along this information to them or forward their contact details to us via Email: exedglobal@sem.tsinghua.edu.cn or WeChat: 13439064976.

Thank you for your support!